SENATE REPUBLICANS SURRENDER DYER BILL TO DEMO FILIBUSTERS

HOUSE WANTS DATA IN MOVE TO OUST ATTY. DAUGHERTRY

(Associated Press Night Wire)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 4.—The house today directed its judiciary committee to send for all the persons and papers it needed in its investigation of impeachment charges against Attorney General Daugherty, as filed by Representative Kellar, republican, of Minnesota.

There was no discussion or division when Chairman Volstead asked and obtained consent for authorization. He explained that the committee earlier in the day had agreed unanimously to take this course.

Appearing before the committee with Jackson H. Ralston as his counsel, Mr. Keller declared that he was not prepared to proceed at once, and December 12 finally was fixed as the time for taking up the charges.

The bill of particulars, in which Mr. Keller set forth 14 charges against the attorney general, and the latter's answer, made public last night, were formally filed with the committee.

BRITISH, IRISH OFFICIALLY END FEUD OF YEARS

(Associated Press Night Wire)
 LONDON, Nov. 4.—The centuries old struggle between England and Ireland ended tonight, when the legislation giving the sanction of law to the new settlement with Ireland passed its final stages in the house of lords, which for generations has bitterly opposed any accommodation with Ireland.

The constitution bill has gone through both houses of parliament without any amendment, and even without division being challenged. Lord Carson alone, whose influence was mainly responsible for failure to settle the Irish question 1914, and who has throughout his political career been the bitterest opponent of home rule, persisted to the very end of his role of "last ditcher," even when such traditional anti-home rulers as the Marquise Lansdowne and the Duke of Devonshire had gracefully yielded to the government view and resolved to give Ireland a chance to prove her sincerity under new conditions. There now only remains royal assent, which is a pure formality, and everything will be ready for the new Irish government to come into existence, with excellent omens in the expressed desire even of many of the "die hard" statesmen in England to give it every opportunity to succeed in its work, not only unhampered, but aided by England.

MOB RAIDS LIQUOR WAREHOUSE IN EAST

(Associated Press Night Wire)
 PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 4.—Twenty-five or thirty men surrounded the Liberty Yeast corporation at Pekin tonight and compelled employees to help them load 60 barrels of whiskey on five automobile trucks. The plant raided is used as a warehouse for liquor.

ACQUITTAL FOR HERNANDEZ IN QUICK VERDICT

Manuel Hernandez was acquitted on a charge of murder, when the jury in Hernandez' trial for the alleged slaying of Felipe Ruiz at Jerome the 14th of last month filed into the jury box after deliberating 20 minutes, and delivered a verdict of not guilty.

Trial of the former Cedar Glade employe of the Santa Fe for the shooting of Ruiz required but a short time. Evidence seemed to be clear-cut and was presented by a handful of prosecution and defense witnesses in the course of the afternoon. At 11:45 a jury had been selected, and at 5:10 the court had read its instructions to the jurors, who filed out to deliberate the evidence.

How two shots were heard near Ruiz' home at Jerome the night of November 14, and how Jess Jackson and his brother-in-law ran down and found the body of Ruiz was related for the production by Jackson. Police Chief J. G. Crowley and Policeman Kirby of Jerome testified that they were called to the scene, and Judge Clyde B. Jones testified to the finding of the coroner's jury.

Self-defense was the showing upon which Judge John A. Ellis, defense counsel, sought to establish his client's innocence of murder. A resident of Jerome for eight or ten months and, prior to that time, of Cedar Glade, Hernandez had been living with his mother, and his wife, it was testified, his sister living with Ruiz.

The defendant's mother and sister sat in the court room with him, hanging breathlessly upon the defendant's answers, which were made known to court and jury through an interpreter.

About September 1 of this year, Ruiz, who, Hernandez declared, had lived with his sister for seven years, brought her home and left her with her mother. After that, Ruiz and Hernandez never spoke until the date of the shooting.

On the morning of November 14, in the change-room of the Little Daisy, Ruiz handed Hernandez a note in Spanish, reading: "I have some business with you which must be settled. Don't let this pass and meet me at 6 o'clock," naming a meeting place.

Hernandez, he said, placed the note in the pocket of his work clothes, where it was later found by officers, and did not read it until later that day.

The meeting was kept. Hernandez declared that Ruiz had heaped abuse upon him, resorting to vile words in reference to his sister, and saying "I'll show you what kind of a man I am," reaching for his pocket.

"What did you do?" the witness was asked.

"I tumbled him," came the answer from the interpreter.

Hernandez had never been arrested and was frightened, he said. He fled to his brother-in-law's home in Cedar Glade, where he was later taken into custody.

That Ruiz had not drawn the gun which was found near his body, was contended by the prosecution. The deceased wore a pair of bib overalls over a pair of khaki trousers. Ruiz' hand, Judge Jones said, was over his watch-pocket when his body was turned over. The .44 Colt revolver near his body had six unfired cartridges in the chamber.

DAY ON TRIAL FOR COLORADO MURDERING

(Associated Press Night Wire)
 DURANGO, Colo., Dec. 4.—The prosecution and defense each had exhausted five of the fifteen peremptory challenges allowed them when the first day's trial of Rod. S. Day was concluded late today.

Day, managing editor of the Durango Democrat, son of the late and widely known Dave F. Day, whom he succeeded in the directorship of the paper, is charged with the slaying here of William L. Wood on April 24, last. Wood, city editor of the Durango Herald, a rival newspaper, was shot to death on the principal street of the town.

Day, according to the testimony of a number of witnesses at the coroner's inquest, fired a revolver twice at Wood when the two men met on Main street, after Wood is alleged to have knocked Day down. One bullet struck Wood back of the right ear. He died two hours later.

Rebekahs and Odd Fellows enjoyed an excellent dinner served by the pink team members. Afterwards, a large number of new members were initiated.

REDUCTION OF NATION'S COSTS AND TAXES DEPENDS ON CUTTING OF FEDERAL AID, HARDING SAYS

(Associated Press Night Wire)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 4.—Appropriations aggregating $3,078,940,331 for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, were proposed today to congress by President Harding in the second annual federal budget. This is exclusive of the postal service and compares with actual appropriations for this fiscal year totaling $3,274,238,690. Government expenditures for the coming fiscal year, also exclusive of the postal service, were estimated at $3,180,843,234 as compared with an estimate of $3,703,801,671 for this fiscal year, and an actual outlay of $3,795,302,499 for the fiscal year ended last June 30.

The total federal reserve revenue for 1924 was reckoned at $3,361,812,359, or an excess of $180,969,125 over previous expenditures. The estimated revenue for this fiscal year was $3,429,862,959 or $273,938,712 less than the expected outlay, Mr. Harding said, however, that it was hoped to eliminate this deficit before the end of the year, adding that if this hope were not realized the expected surplus for 1924 would give a margin to take care of a deficit.

In his message accompanying the detailed budget, the president frankly told congress that whether the country could look forward to any further material reduction in federal expenditures and taxes in future years depended largely upon whether there was a curtailment or expansion of federal aid in lines of research improvement and development. Attention was called by the executive that practically two-thirds of the estimated outlay was on account of the practically fixed charges, such as pensions, and World war allowances, public debt principal and interest, federal aid and national defense, so that there was only about $1,000,000,000 subject to administration control.

(Associated Press)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 4.—President Harding in transmitting the annual federal budget for the next fiscal year, frankly told congress today that whether there was to be any material reduction in government expenditures and in taxes in future years, would depend largely on whether there was to be a curtailment or expansion of federal aid in lines of research, improvement and development.

Placing the estimated government outlay in 1924 at $3,186,843,234, a decrease of about $500,000,000, as compared with estimates for this fiscal year, Mr. Harding called attention that two-thirds of this total was on account of practically fixed charges, such as the public debt, national defense, pensions, World war allowances and federal aid. There was left, he said, only about $1,000,000,000 in charges subject to administrative control and against which, he added, the retrenchment policy of the government had been directed.

While expressing the opinion that some further reduction undoubtedly would result from a reorganization of government establishments on a more scientific basis, the president said this alone would not affect such a material cut in operating costs as would justify the expression of hope for a considerable lessening of expenditures in the years to come.

Extraneous Activities
 Taking up the question of federal aid, the executive declared that this was a rapidly broadening field of expenditure and that there was a question as to how far the government should participate in it. He added that it did not pertain to the normal functions or operations of the business of the government.

"These extraneous activities," he continued, "have flowed from laws enacted pursuant to popular demand, and I take this occasion to refer to them, for the purpose of showing that the taxation which necessarily results in providing funds to meet them in a necessary incident to the fulfillment of the popular demand.

"In the efforts which have been directed to reducing public expenditures, I have been much concerned in apparent increasing state, county and municipal indebtedness and I am fearful lest this condition may be in part attributable to the expenditures made by the government pursuant to its federal aid laws, as many of these state laws require state contributions

MRS. J.R. LOWRY DIES: WAS ILL MANY MONTHS

Mrs. Jas. R. Lowry, widow of the late Jim Lowry, passed away at Mercy hospital at 8:40 o'clock last night, after an illness for which she has been under care since she resigned her position as matron of the county jail last summer to go to Los Angeles for her health. While not unexpected, due to Mrs. Lowry's long illness, the end came suddenly, Mrs. Lowry seeming to grow worse during the past few days. She had seemed cheerful and more spirited than usual on Thanksgiving day, when she was able to converse with friends. But during the end of the week, she took a turn for the worse, and her sister, Dr. Margaret Banta, of Los Angeles, who has been attending her constantly, sent for her son, Malcolm G. Lowry, who arrived to be with his mother during her last hours. Mrs. Lowry died of a nervous breakdown brought on by pernicious anemia.

Many friends in Prescott will mourn Mrs. Lowry's passing. Coming here from Indiana 32 years ago, she made her home with the family of J. M. W. Moore until her marriage with Mr. Lowry in 1892. Later, she and Mr. Lowry resided on East Goodwin street until they built a home on Grove street, where they lived until Mr. Lowry's death in 1920 from a shot received while in pursuit of his duties as a Yavapai county peace officer.

Arrangements for services, which will be held in Prescott, are being made by Malcolm Lowry and Fred and J. M. W. Moore, the latter lifelong friends of the family.

Mrs. Lowry will be laid to rest in Mountain View cemetery, beside the bodies of her husband and her son, the late Lieut. James R. Lowry, Jr., who died this past summer in Los Angeles and whose funeral here was attended with military honors.
